Members of Camp 20

Testify on the Witness Stand in the Cronin Case.

SOME SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

It Has Been Proven That Dr. Cronin Was Regarded as a Spy by His Fellow Clanmen—A Secret Committee Was Appointed Which Made Its Report to John F. Beggs Only.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The crowd that gathered about Judge McConnell's court Wednesday morning was larger than at any time yet. The cause of the increased interest was the expected revelation from the Clan-na-Gael witness, Stephen Colleran, whose examination was to be resumed. It was thought by the state that Colleran knew more of the details of the meeting of Feb. 8, than had yet been brought out, and an effort would be made to induce or compel him to tell the truth. It was also understood that Mr. Foster would make no objection, on behalf of Mr. Beggs, to the full clearing up of the secrets of Camp 20.

When court opened, Stephen Colleran was called for. The bailiff went to the ante-room, and coming back announced: "He is not there."

"Has Colleran skipped?" asked the audience one of another.

Mr. Mills stated that Colleran had been told to be on hand, and asked that an officer be sent after him, which was done. Judge Loughecker asked for the issuance of an attachment for Edward Spellman, of Peoria, Ill., the district officer of the Clan-na-Gael. "He was subpoenaed in September, but has not answered, although he said he would come when telegraphed for. We summoned him day before yesterday and he has not come," said Mr. Loughecker.

"Let the attachment issue," said Judge McConnell.

"At the object of calling Mr. Spellman is to identify certain letters between Beggs and Spellman, it will not be necessary to subpoena him. We will admit all those letters," said Mr. Foster.

"We expect to prove other things, too," said Mr. Hyues.

In the absence of Colleran, Dennis O'Connor was called. In reply to questions by Judge Loughecker, he testified he had been a member of the Clan-na-Gael twenty-one years. He was at the meeting of Camp 20 Feb. 8. He heard Andrew Foy "make a few remarks," but no speech—"no Clan-na-Gael man made speeches, only remarks." He could not remember what Foy said. Capt. O'Connor also "made some remarks." He said he had been in Dr. Cronin's camp, and heard read the minority report of the trial committee of the executive body. Witness did not know who the executive was that was on trial.

He further said it was a rule that members of the order should not know who the executive committee were. The names of the executive committee were not alluded to that night. "After Capt. O'Connor's speech," said the witness, "someone moved that a committee be appointed to investigate the matter alluded to by Capt. O'Connor." The motion was carried, but witness did not know whether or not the committee was appointed. It was to be a secret committee; the senior guardian always appointed committee ordered by resolution. Witness was asked: "Did you hear Capt. O'Connor say that the funds had been embezzled by the executive, and instead of looking for spies in the camp, the executive ought to be investigated?"

He replied, "I might have heard that, but I don't remember it."

Continuing, O'Connor half admitted that he remembered Capt. O'Connor saying at the meeting in question that the executive had sent Irishmen to England and then betrayed them and that they were then in English prisons. He might also have said that there were English spies in the camp, that LeCarou was a spy and that his friends were in the order in this city.

A brief cross-examination by Foster in behalf of Beggs showed that the witness' memory was very defective. "I don't remember," was his answer. Foster tried his every mode of questioning his memory, but finally gave it up in despair, but dismissed him after he had said that he attended the meeting in question because he understood that important business was going to be around that night. That night the business in question being the minority report of the Buffalo convention that had been read in Cronin's camp.

At this juncture the missing witness, Stephen Colleran, put in an appearance.

Cross-examined by Foster he said himself and Burke had worked for the city, being discharged last December. The three visits paid by himself and Burke to Beggs' office was for the purpose of securing the latter's influence in getting them reinstated. Neither Clan-na-Gael matters, or Irish affairs, or Cronin's name was referred to in these interviews.

Patrick Henry Nolan, a bookkeeper and financial secretary of Camp 20, was the next witness. He was shown the cash ledger of the camp, and read from it that Coughlin's number was 91, Beggs' 258, Cookey's 211, O'Sullivan's 253 and Burke's 332. He said that he was not present at the memorable meeting of Feb. 8, but at the reunion meeting of Feb. 22, he heard the remarks made by Beggs in reply to McGarry and Powers. He was at the meeting of May 3, and had understood that Beggs had appointed a secret committee. He had also associated in his mind, one disappearance of Dr. Cronin with this appointment. This admission created a sensation.

Nolan was cross-examined by Mr. Foster and said that he had never heard of the inner circle in Camp 20, he admitted that he had been visited by counsel for one of the defendants. Beggs and Foster held a whispered conference at this point, and the witness was again cross-examined concerning the dates of the meetings of the camp. A reference to the minutes showed that he had mixed the dates up, and on Mr. Foster's motion the minute book was a minute in evidence. This was a disappointment to the state, as it threw a doubt on the correctness of all of Nolan's evidence upon which the state relied to prove Beggs' practical admission of the appointment of the committee by saying that it was to report to him as senior guardian alone.

The most important witness of the day was Capt. T. P. O'Connor, the calling of whose name created considerable excitement. He said that he was a member of Camp 20, and that at a meeting on Feb. 8, Andrew Foy arose in his place and declared in the existing condition of the organization things were in a bad shape. He arose was testifying before the "mullin commission," and there were four British spies in America. Foy urged that the clan should be dissolved and then reorganized under another name, and then every one who was in any way tainted with British affiliations could be thrown out.

"Replying to that," said Capt. O'Connor, "I said that I was not surprised at the remarks. I said that if they wanted to look for spies they should look among the executive body. For I had positive information that the executive committee were thieves and scoundrels; that they were betraying the order, and that they had squandered the funds of the order to the amount of $100,000, and that they had sent some of the bravest and best men into British prisons. I went on to say that I had heard a verbal report and had seen a closely written account of 400 pages, containing the report of the trial at Buffalo, and that it proved these facts. Instantly there was a tumult," said Mr. O'Connor. "A number of brothers arose and asked me where I got my information. To one of them I said: 'I ask nothing.' Then I turned to the senior guardian and said that if the senior guardian demanded my source of information I would give it. There was more outbreak, and I again appealed to the senior guardian. Then Dan Coughlin arose in his place and moved that a committee of three be appointed to investigate this statement of mine, and find out where I got my information. There was more talk and wrangle, and then the senior guardian rapped for order and said: 'I will hear no more on this subject. I will appoint the committee.'"

"Who was the senior guardian?"

"John F. Beggs." Cross-examined, the witness said that he did not mention Cronin's name or the number of his camp, but that there were men present who understood the meaning and personal reference of his words. Witness gave a clear deduction of Dan Coughlin's motion than had previously been given. "The object of the committee asked for," he said, "was to ascertain the source of my information—where I obtained it."

Forrest moved that all this testimony be stricken out, but this was overruled. The witness stated that one camp could try a member of another, for he had known it to be done. He had heard of the inner circle as another name for the executive. He saw Beggs at the time of the inquest and asked him if he should tell all he knew and reveal the secrets of the order. Beggs replied: "Yes, tell everything. Meetings might as well be held in Battery D. Everybody knows all about the order now." He advised him to conceal nothing but tell everything," said the witness.

In cross-examination by Attorney Foster, O'Connor said he attended the meeting at which some one asked when the report of the secret committee would be made, and Senior Guardian Beggs replied that the committee would report to him alone. He would not swear as to the date of the meeting. Upon being shown the record of the camp he said the meeting was held on May 10, the Friday after the disappearance of Dr. Cronin.

Police Officer John F. Collins another member of Camp 20, was the next witness. He said he was present at the meeting of Feb. 8, and he corroborated former witnesses regarding the speeches made by Foy and Capt. O'Connor, adding that upon their conclusion many present jumped to their feet and hissed, in the midst of which confusion Dan Coughlin said something about appointing a secret committee. At the meeting of Feb. 22 witness heard Beggs, after McGarry and Powers finished speaking, excitedly slap his breast and declare that the insinuations against Alexander Sullivan must cease at once.

Cross-examined by Attorney Foster, witness acknowledged that most meetings of the camp were characterized by more or less wrangling, and that when Beggs denounced the casting of reductions on Alexander Sullivan he also pleaded for peace between the factions, even if war were required to secure it.

Henry Owen O'Connor gave some sensational evidence. He swore that Friday, March 1, at the first meeting after the reunion meeting, and after Beggs, McGarry and Powers had made speeches he met Dan Coughlin. Dan took him aside and told him that the information had been received from England that there was a confederate in the order in Chicago. Dan then said that the indications were that Dr. Cronin was the British spy referred to. This was the first direct evidence that had been brought to light to show that Dr. Cronin was regarded as a spy by his fellow clansmen.

Patrick McGarry, senior guardian of Camp 20, took the stand and said that in his speech on Feb. 22, he endorsed the wish that unity might prevent it, but declared that it could not be obtained so long as certain members persisted in blackguarding in secret the man (referring to Dr. Cronin) that had the courage to take corruption by the throat and throttle it. Also that the man (Alexander Sullivan) who recommended LeCarou to membership in the Clan-na-Gael society was a thousand times greater scoundrel than LeCarou.

On the night following Dr. Cronin's disappearance, witness went to Patrick O'Sullivan's house and told O'Sullivan that his contract with the doctor was a suspicious circumstance. O'Sullivan had asked him if he didn't think Dr. Cronin was murdered by the united order of deputies. Witness had said the doctor was murdered by some persons nearer home.

The witness was on the stand when the court adjourned.

Spellman Missing.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 31.—The sheriff of this county has received an order from Cook county to arrest Edward Spellman, the district delegate of the Clan-na-Gael. Spellman was summoned to appear in Chicago and testify in the Cronin case, but disregarded the summons. He could not be found here, and has been out of the city for two weeks. His family claim that they do not know where he is, but that he is away on business for the whisky trust. This is denied by members of the trust. It is thought that he has gone east to avoid testifying in the Cronin case.

Witness From Winnipeg.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—A News special from Winnipeg, Man., says Assistant States Attorney Baker, of Chicago, was yesterday closeted for a long time with ex-convict Heffer, and is said to be convinced that Heffer's story regarding Burke's confession is true. Heffer, however, said he had no intention of appearing as a witness in the Cronin case, unless he was well paid for his services. Mr. Baker also had an interview with Gillitte, the Fargo forger, who was another of Burke's confidants in the jail. Gillitte was yesterday sentenced to thirty years in the penitentiary, but the authorities have agreed to hold him in the jail here for a day or two, in order to give Mr. Baker an opportunity to secure a sworn statement from him.

CHINESE LEPEERS.

Five of Them Shipped Back to China From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—Five Chinese lepers were shipped home from this city yesterday on a Hong Kong steamer. Among them was Chiu Tin, aged 26, who was sent here from New York where he had been employed as a cook for laborers on the Croton aqueduct works. Chiu Tin speaks English well and says that five years ago he had a bad attack of small-pox in New York. He is a paralytic tubercular leper. The lepers present a most horrible sight.

At a secret meeting of the board of health held a few days ago, it was decided that the interest of the city would be served by shipping all the Chinese lepers to China. It is the opinion of experts that these men were tainted with the disease either before leaving China or brought it direct from the Hawaiian Islands.

Sane or Insane.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Some days after the shooting and killing of Frederick Glesswein, the wealthy young street jeweler's tool maker, on Sept. 13, by Christian J. Dehle, the aged inventor of Philadelphia, a commission was appointed by Recorder Smith to inquire into Dehle's mental condition. The commission reported that the old man was physically weak and that his mind was unbalanced. The physicians' report was received yesterday by Judge Martine and Dehle was called upon to plead to the indictment charging him with murder in the first degree. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded to be tried by a jury on his sanity. If he is adjudged insane he will be sent to the state hospital for the insane at Poughkeepsie, and if sane he will have to stand trial for murder.

Vessels Can Land on Sunday.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—In a case testing the legality of towing on Sunday Judge Thompson, in the superior court, held that "vessels coming to the port of Boston have a right to come to docks Sunday, and that it is a work of necessity to bring the vessel in whether by sailors on board, or by those in another boat towing her." The prosecution was instituted by persons who are desirous that all Sunday work of this character should be suspended.

A Collision at Sea.

Cleopatra and Crystal Wave Both Sunk.

CREWS OF BOTH VESSELS SAVED.

The Accident Occurs Off the Delaware Capes—Both Steamers Go Down Within an Hour After the Collision—Thirty-Nine People on Board of the Vessels at the Time.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad company's steamer Kanawha, arrived here Wednesday morning with the crew of the steamers Cleopatra and Crystal Wave, which collided and sank off the Delaware capes Tuesday morning. The Cleopatra was from West Point for New York, and the Crystal Wave was from New York for Washington.

The Kanawha overhauled the disabled vessels soon after the collision. She tried to take the Cleopatra in tow, but both steamers sank within an hour. She had a crew of twenty-six men, and the Crystal Wave had thirteen. All were taken safely aboard the Kanawha. The Cleopatra had 943 bales of cotton aboard for New York. She was an old hulk, and steamboatmen do not wonder that she was wrecked by running into the little Crystal Wave. The latter was a small but swift boat, formerly plying on the Harlem and East rivers as an excursion boat. She was on her way to Washington for service on the Potomac.

Capt. Dole, of the Cleopatra, says that when he sighted the Crystal Wave she was coming down on the port bow, showing a red light. All of a sudden she starboarded and shot across the Cleopatra's bow, making collision inevitable. The weather was cloudy, but not foggy nor very dark.

Capt. Martin, of the Crystal Wave, says that the vessels exchanged the proper signals, according to the naval code, but the Cleopatra came straight on and struck the Crystal Wave on the starboard quarter, before the latter boat could get out of the way. Capt. Randall, owner of the Crystal Wave, was aboard the vessel at the time.

The Crystal Wave was purchased a few days ago by Capt. Randall, of Washington, for $45,000. He neglected to insure her and loses the entire amount which he says represents nearly all the savings of a lifetime. The Cleopatra was worth about $30,000.

A Disabled Steamship.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The steamship Colorado, of the Mallory line, which left here a week ago for Galveston, Tex., put back yesterday to this port. She anchored at Sandy Hook bar and signaled for assistance. It appears that she lost her rudder and has been tossing about ever since her departure. She carries a large list of passengers.

ACCIDENTS ON THE RAIL

Results in the Loss of Several Lives and Much Property.

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 31.—Passenger train No. 2, going east over the Norfolk and Western railway, collided with a freight train coming west, one and a quarter miles below Buford station, at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Lee Jones, fireman on the freight train, Sonny McDaniel, a colored tramp from Lynchburg, and Joseph Gwinn, colored brakeman were killed.

The following were wounded: L. E. Wickes, conductor on the freight, leg lacerated, necessitating amputation and otherwise injured, it is feared fatally; Jacob Powers, extra fireman, right thigh broken and cut about the face and head; Andrew Francis, postal clerk, front teeth knocked out and cut on the head and arm; William Steffey, engineer on freight, cut badly on the head.

The accident resulted from the misapprehension of orders. When the freight passed Thaxton they had until 1:20 a. m. to reach Buford station, but the conductor read the order 1:40 a. m., and thinking he had ample time, ran ahead.

An old colored man returning home signalled the passenger train and warned it of the approaching freight train. Speed was reduced, but the collision could not be avoided. Four freight cars, a postal car and both engines were badly wrecked.

On the Lake Shore.

GOSHEN, Ind., Oct. 31.—The limited vestibule train, No. 1, west bound, on the Lake Shore road was wrecked at Wawaka Wednesday morning. The entire train was thrown on its side and every truck torn off. A wrecking train with railroad officials and doctors have gone to the scene. Various reports are rife as to loss of life and injuries to passengers, but the truth cannot yet be learned.

Freight Cars Derailed.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 31.—By the derailing of two cars of a freight train on the Boston and Maine railroad, at Oakdale, yesterday, traffic over the main tracks was delayed for several hours. A wrecking train was sent to the scene. No one was injured.

Furnace Boiler Explodes.

BELLAIRE, O., Oct. 31.—One of the large boilers of the Bellaire blast furnace exploded yesterday with terrible force, cracking two other boilers in the main battery and wrecking the boiler rooms. The south end of the nail factory was entirely demolished, windows were broken in all the adjoining buildings and the wreck was scattered over an area of one hundred yards. The damage to the mill and adjoining property is $200,000. No one was injured.

THERE is a great fight on in Louisville in the management of municipal affairs. The great trouble in all cities is the falling of the local government into the hands of a set of men who run things to suit their own private interests. The only safety is to make frequent changes in the offices.

THE announcement that a soldier of Co. B, First Wisconsin Infantry, has just now received $293 as his share of the reward offered for the capture of Jeff Davis, may illustrate that Uncle Sam is disposed to pay up, but certainly also the additional fact he is sometimes awful slow about fulfilling his promises.

It is astonishing what a fascination politics has for some people. If they would give the same amount of energy and attention to their business that they expend in trying to run down an office they would meet with wonderful success and big financial returns. Only the very poor or the very rich can afford to meddle in politics.

COLONEL W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE, the silver-tongued orator, will speak at Owensville Saturday night. In order to meet this appointment, it is said Colonel Breckinridge refused an offer of $250 to speak in Brooklyn, New York, the same night. If Bath County don't turn out and give him a grand audience they have no appreciation of a grand man.

THE last grand jury recommended that the County Attorney procure an appropriation from the Court of Claims to repair and paint the court house. What the county really needs is a new court house, with all the modern improvements and conveniences, and it is a pity that some of the money squandered on railroads was not applied in this direction.

JUDGE JAMES R. JEWELL is announced as a candidate for Recorder of the City of Lexington. Judge Jewell is the author of that famous aphorism "politics is hell," which has gained a name throughout the civilized world. Judge Jewell knows a few things about politics himself, and has a faculty for "getting thar" that is unequalled. He is now on the track in good form, and will be a sure winner.—Lexington Transcript.

A PROMINENT and public spirited farmer of Clark County is busily engaged preparing turnpike statistics. He desires to inform himself thoroughly on the subject of the cost, condition, dividends, receipts and expenditures of our roads. He feels and knows that the present system of collecting and maintaining the toll is too great a burden upon the people and he hopes at an early date to lay before the people a full and complete statement, with some suggestions as to the remedy. If some one would do a like work for Mason County it would furnish some interesting reading. No one knows anything about our turnpikes except the favored few on the inside, and they don't give out much satisfactory information. The turnpikes under the present system are too much of a burden on the people and the subject is commanding general attention all over the State.

THE Democracy founded by Thomas Jefferson will live until the hands on the dial plate of Time have completed their circuit, and the world shall cease to be. It cannot die. Almost a century of years have known the Democratic party, and to-day its lustre is undimmed. It is the only political party in America that ever had an ever-living principle, that ever held aloft the banner that proclaims the equality of man and insists upon a government of the people by the people. It has always been—ever will be—the deadly foe of centralization, or the Republican idea of a strong government, to wit, a hateful monarchy! Is it any wonder, then, that countless millions revere the name of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of our grand old party? Other parties have come and they have gone—like the flowers of spring—but the Democratic party has a permanency that cannot be destroyed. Year by year it has added to its strength until in the last Presidential election it showed a popular majority of over one hundred thousand! It is strong and lusty to-day, and in an open field it need fear no enemy.

SEVERAL Kentucky towns are on a decided boom and others are trying to get up booms. Some are following the Western idea of making their advantages known to the world by liberal advertising. Winchester has issued, in book form ready information of her advantages and the inducements offered to persons seeking to change their location and will distribute the book free throughout the East and North. Many other towns in the State are systematically calling the attention of the outside world to them as a place suitable for business or residence and why should not Maysville join the procession and keep up with the march of progress now on through-out the entire State. We need first of all a Board of Trade. There is not a first class town anywhere without one. Can't some of our leading business men take this matter in hand at once and organize. The time has come for Maysville to do something. Let us be up and doing.

State Aid to Turnpikes.

The Hazel Green Herald, published in Wolfe, has a scheme to make the pauper counties self-sustaining. Whether the reasoning is cogent or not will be left for the members of this, the next or coming Legislature to decide. It says: "Twenty of the twenty-one counties in this Congressional district draw annually from the State Treasury $150,000 more than they pay in. This sum for ten years amounts to $1,500,000, and divided among the twenty counties equally would in that time give each $75,000. At $2,000 per mile this sum would build thirty-seven and one-half miles of turnpike for each county. Now, gentlemen of the Legislature and Senate, and especially you of Eastern Kentucky, we ask you to look this matter squarely in the face. Suppose that each county has thirty-seven and one-half miles of turnpike running through her territory, do you suppose—does any sane man think—that these twenty counties would continue to draw this immense sum from the Treasury? Aye or any part of it? No, gentlemen. The enhanced value of the land would raise revenue enough to render us self-sustaining in ten years. Then the riches that would flow into the Treasury in the years to come would soon make Kentucky one of the wealthiest States in the Union."

YESTERDAY afternoon near Concord, in Lewis County, a horse ridden by Sheriff Quit Willum became frightened by a passing train on the O. & O. and threw its rider. The Sheriff's foot caught in the stirrup and he was dragged some distance before he got his foot free. The horse run up the track and into a wire fence cutting its throat from which it soon died. The Sheriff was only slightly bruised up.

At Ashland, the public schools have been closed, and at Rock Springs, in Rockcastle County, this dreadful disease is raging. There have been several deaths, and the schools have all been dismissed. NOTICE was made yesterday of the serious illness of Mr. Shelby Campbell, of Aberdeen, who was stricken down with paralysis last Tuesday. He died yesterday afternoon, aged eighty odd years. THE Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette says: "The best way to get rid of river pirates, who occupy shantyboats along the shores, is for Congress to pass a law requiring the owners and inhabitants of the boats to obtain license, and to give proof that they are engaged in fishing as a legitimate and honorable means of making a living. All who fail to pay for and obtain that license should be arrested and tried by the United States courts and punished. It is time these perambulating marine rascals should be gotten rid of."

RIPLEY is to be congratulated upon the prospect of the immediate reorganization of the once famous Stamm's Silver Cornet Band. Mr. Al. Stamm has been engaged for the period of one year to teach and train the band. It will be composed of twelve horns, three clarinets, two drummers, one cymbal player and a real live drum major. Mr. George Schneider, one of the original members, is a leading spirit in the revival. Stamm's Band used to be well and favorably known all over this portion of Ohio and Kentucky.

THE Cincinnati Enquirer says: "The new shops that the Kentucky Central people propose to build will most likely be located at Paris. The K. C. is doing work for the C. & O. at the Covington shops at a reasonable price and the C. & O., when they take the Covington shops will most likely do work for the K. C. people until the Kentucky Central new shops are ready for business."

MR. JOHN PAYNE, JR., of Warsaw, Gallatin County, Ky., is one of the oldest pensioners in the United States. He has drawn a pension continuously for over a half century. Mr. Payne was a cadet at West Point in 1820, and on April 25th of that year he received a wound in the face which permanently disabled him from duty as a soldier. He has drawn his pension from the Louisville office ever since. He does not come after his check, but General Buell's efficient young lady clerks send him the money regularly if it takes the last cent in the office.

MRS. JULIA A. BROSHIERS, widow of the late Middleton Broshears, died at her home in Charleston Bottom this morning at 5:30 o'clock, after a long and painful illness. She leaves a family of eight children—five sons and three daughters—to mourn her loss. The funeral to-morrow morning at her home, after which the remains will be laid to rest in the Keth Cemetery in Charleston Bottom.

THE Western Tobacco Journal says: "Ed. M. Pace had a novel sale at the Rocky Mountain Warehouse one day last week. It was nothing more nor less than the sale, to the highest bidder, of a young lady, who was 'knocked down,' figuratively, on a $7,000,000 bid by an enterprising citizen. The tobacco is said to have sold well, but the girl didn't, for $7,000,000 is 'dirt cheap' for a fair, average, North Carolina, Nash County girl. The Wilmington Star observes that Ed. must start up on a livelier Pace than that, if selling girls is to be one of the regular features of his sales."

THERE is one loss for which the world yields no substitute. A man may lose his good name and recover it; he may lose a child and have other sons, and daughters to call him father; he may lose a sister and other sisters shall be left to perpetuate the one; or a brother, and still retain a fraternal handgrasp within his own to make the world a cherrier place to tarry in, but if a man loses his mother, though he live to round out his four score span of life, no other lips can truly call him son, and upon no other can he genuinely bestow the sacred name of mother. It is the one title which, like the moon in the evening sky, out shines all lesser lights.—Danville Advocate.

At the meeting of the Christian Missionary Society in Louisville last week, when the report of the Committee on Colored Missions and Schools was made, it created considerable debate. After the white preachers had gotten through the Rev. Mr. Robinson, colored, of Louisville, arose and began saying a word. He was in the rear of the congregation, and immediately there were calls for him to come forward and take the stand. He did so, and made decidedly the best speech of the whole convention. He is a black man, about forty-two years old, and possesses more than average intelligence. He is, furthermore, a natural-born orator, and his manner was a revelation to many of the delegates. He was witty, pathetic and eloquent and elicited the heartiest applause, frequently, during his talk. He said: "Brethren, I am glad to be with you white folks. I understand the white folks about as well as I understand the negro, and I don't think any man can understand the negro who has never lived in the same country with him. I am not after social equality, civil rights, politics nor anything else outside of the Gospel of God. We live with you, and I expect we have come to stay. Why, we are being born at the rate of 500 per day in the United States. We need you and you need us. I know Dr. Hobbs, Dr. Tyler, Dr. Powell and others of you. I know how to approach them and they know how to approach me. I am a Virginian, and, consequently, I have good manners. I expect to conduct myself in such a manner that no man can get my pulpit until I die, and I don't expect to die as long as I live, and I expect to live as long as God lives and where God lives. I say no man can get my pulpit till I die—morally, mentally, physically or spiritually. No, sir; I am proud to meet you here as a Christian minister. I am proud to be a member of the Christian Church. Sixteen years ago, when I left Virginia, I was almost ashamed of my church—it was so small. But now, it is a great big thing, and it is going to grow bigger. I thank you for the opportunity to make these few remarks."

The big cattle have begun to move, and at lower prices than have been known for years. Some farmers talk of quitting cattle in disgust and trying sheep or mules instead. Our word for it, you can make no better investment than in nice red calves at $10 to $15 per head.—Weekly Advance.

J. C. Johnson, of this county bought of George Engleman 13, 1,323 pound cattle at 3 cents, and 1,250 pound steers at 3 cents, and Polk Williams a car load of 1,500 pound at 3 1/2 cents. J. C. Johnson sold Monday 12 extra nice yearling cattle averaging about 900 pounds for $25 per head.—Kentucky Advocate.

Our Customs Receipts

Annual Report of the Commissioner of Customs.

RECEIPTS AMOUNT TO $225,202,411.

The Expenses of Collecting the Revenue from Customs Amounted to Over Seven Million Dollars—Recommendations for Improving the Service—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Samuel V. Holliday, commissioner of customs, has submitted his report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, to the secretary of the treasury. The customs receipts for the year amounted to $225,202,411. The principal receipts were: Customs duties, $223,337,701; customs, tonnage, $473,268; storage, fees, etc., $635,048; emolument fees, $321,247.

The principal expenditures were: Expenses of collecting the revenue from customs, $7,034,713. Debentures, $3,012,883. Excess of deposits, $4,356,759. Construction and maintenance of lights, $2,771,436.

The commissioner calls the attention of the secretary to the necessity of establishing some fixed rules in relation to leaves of absence of per diem employees of the service. He recommends that the appropriation for expenses of collecting the revenue from customs should be permanently increased to a sum adequate to the prompt payment of all necessary expenses under this head, without having recourse to the income from the collections incidental to the service, now allowed by law to be used for that purpose.

The source of income is, from the effect of legislation, continually diminishing, and no permanent provision having been made to counteract this diminution, the appropriation is, with the strictest economy, liable each year to be insufficient to provide for its proper collection of the customs revenue. An increase of the permanent appropriation to $7,500,000 annually, with fixed salaries to customs officers, and the payment into the general fund of those items of collection which are applied to the expenses of this service, would, the commissioner thinks, tend greatly to simplify accounts, establish certainty as to the sum that could be expended, and in every way be an improvement on the present system.

Pension Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Gen. Raum, commissioner of pensions, had a long conference with Secretary Noble at the interior department yesterday about pension bureau matters generally. The related employe cases were discussed, but no definite action with respect to those particular cases, was determined upon.

Two important changes in the method of transacting the business of the pension office were determined upon by Gen. Raum yesterday. It has been the custom to send two calls to the war department for information regarding the record of an applicant for a pension, one to the secretary of war and the other to the surgeon general. The military records are on file in the adjutant general's office, and the medical records from the hospital rolls in the surgeon general's office. Both records were some time ago brought together in the surgeon general's office. Gen. Raum yesterday decided that two separate and distinct calls for this information were unnecessary, so he has issued an order to consolidate them into one. This will save not only time and paper, but clerical labor besides.

He also issued instructions to heads of divisions in the office directing that all claims involving large sums of money, after they have been prepared for special adjudication, are not to be passed upon. They are to be brought to his desk, and he proposes to give them his personal consideration before the pension certificates will be issued. This change will not delay the final adjudication of the claim, as the commissioner intends to give the preference to business of this character and examine the cases as soon as brought before him. He does not intend to make a re-examination of the cases, but in connection with the official familiar with the cases he will go over them so as to know what they are and the principle upon which they have been decided.

The President at the Theater.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Harrison last night for the first time since his inauguration, attended a theatrical performance. It was to see the celebrated Artiste Rhea, "as Josephine, Empress of the French" at Albani's opera house. The president was accompanied by Mrs. Harrison, Secretary Rusk and wife, Attorney General Miller and Mrs. Russell Harrison. The presidential party occupied two stage boxes, and appeared to be delighted with the performance. They came early, before the overture began, and remained until the final fall of the curtain at the end of the sixth act. The theater was crowded, many public officials and prominent people occupying seats in the body of the house.

Consul Lewis' Trial.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Secretary Blaine has not yet reached a full decision in the case of United States Consul Lewis, against whom serious charges were made concerning his actions while at Tangier, Morocco. The secretary has, however, acquitted Mr. Lewis of the charge made against him by Ramon Azogue, the former interpreter at the Tangier consulate, of withholding money due the latter for fifteen months services. The records of the department show that Azogue was paid in full for the time he contracted to serve, and that no formal arrangement of which the department had cognizance, had been entered into for his services during the period mentioned.

Bidding Farewell to Admiral Walker.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Nearly a hundred naval and army officers and civilians, friends of Admiral John G.

Walker, met around a banquet board at the Shoreham last night, to bid farewell to the admiral, previous to his departure for Europe, in command of the United States fleet of new cruisers. Covers were laid for ninety-six guests. Admiral Rogers presided. Secretary Tracy, Admirals Harmony and Greer, and a score or more navy officers, with Gens. McFeeley and McKeever, of the army, were present.

A FAITHFUL DOG.

He Brings Assistance to His Paralyzed Master in the Woods.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31.—Last Monday morning Robert Denham left his house with his dog and gun to hunt squirrels. He had not proceeded far when he was stricken with paralysis and fell to the ground, speechless and helpless. His dog found him in that condition, and unable to move his master could only stay by his side, which he did for many hours. No human aid came and the day was near its close. Going to his master's house the dog went in and, whining piteously, tried to attract the attention of the family.

He started away from the house whining and barking, and going a short distance would return when he found they did not follow him. Finally they decided to follow, and when he saw this he was furious with delight, and set off in a straight line through the woods. The dog led them to the old man, whom they picked up and carried to the house, where he died.

Corner Stone Laying.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The corner stone of the memorial arch dedicated to the soldiers and sailors of Kings county who sacrificed their lives in defence of the Union was laid with appropriate ceremonies at the Prospect park plaza at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was an imposing military and G. A. R. parade, 8,000 men being in line. Rev. Dr. Wesley R. Davis offered prayer. Then Gen. W. T. Sherman made a brief address in laying the corner stone. An oration was delivered by Rev. Dr. Behrends and Rev. Dr. Davis pronounced the benediction. Among prominent military officers present were Gens. Howard and Slocum, and among military organizations from other states were the Fencibles of Philadelphia.

Wholesale Arrests of Tramps.

READING, Pa., Oct. 31.—Over thirty tramps have been arrested during the past twenty-four hours between here and Lebanon, and they have all been sent to jail. The Lebanon valley has been overrun with tramps during the past two months and numerous crimes have been committed. A large quantity of stolen property was found in possession of the prisoners, some of which has been identified by merchants as their goods. It is expected that some of the tramps will be sent to prison for long terms.

Philadelphia's Tascott.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Albert Sutherland, who, until yesterday, was supposed to be Tascott, the murderer of Millionaire Snell, will be brought up for a hearing at Central station tomorrow afternoon, when the charges of forgery against him will be pressed. Chief Wood has heard nothing further from the Chicago authorities, and the hope that he was Tascott was abandoned by all those interested in the case who entertained the idea of receiving the $50,000 reward.

Talmage Starts on His Foreign Trip.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Dr. T. Dewitt Talmage, his wife, daughter and his private secretary and wife were among the passengers on the steamer City of Paris, which sailed for Liverpool yesterday. Two thirds of the congregation of the burned Brooklyn Tabernacle were at the Inman dock to see their pastor off and wish him godspeed. Among the floral offerings to Dr. Talmage was a magnificent floral duplicate of his burned church. It stood three feet high. Dr. Talmage will be gone until the middle of next January. He will stop at Paris, Rome, then go to Naples, all through the Holy land and back to America again.

The Rest of His Life in Sing Sing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The jury in the trial of Andrew Becker charged with the murder of James Connelly, at Richmond, S. I., after deliberating all night brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree. Judge O'Neill sentenced Becker to life imprisonment in Sing Sing.

Rube Burrows Still at Liberty.
